

What we heard:

- There is the underlying importance of listening to, and honouring individuals' stories.
- Names are SO important - they can incorporate our identity so if someone has changed their name and/or pronouns using this chosen name is so important. Refusing to use a chosen name may seem like a rejection to who that person is. Using chosen names/pronouns can be suicide prevention.
- Use of non-binary pronouns can be practiced in prayer.
- There is so much to learn - a large spectrum/umbrella of ways that people express gender - it is our responsibility to educate ourselves.
- Being confused and overwhelmed doesn't mean that we are not open to learning more and becoming more inclusive.
